NEW ATTACK MENACES KAISER

GET CLEW IN AUTO PLATES

A dismantled auto and two State of Maine number plates caused Chief of Police Brown of Boston to secure a warrant today for the arrest of John Blake of Wollfleet in connection with the automobile accident in which Edward J. Ahern, a Seaback farmer, was injured Saturday night. Ahern, a brother of former Representative David Ahern of Framingham, was driving home in his wagon Saturday night. He lost a light on his tailboard of his wagon, the automobile collided with the wagon. Ahern was found unconscious on the road by St. J. Deberry in front of whose house the accident happened.

Deberry said he saw a second touring car containing five young men pass the wreckage on the wreckage. The passengers in the second car helped the two men in the colliding car and someone remarked, according to Deberry, "Hurry now and get out of the way." Deberry said the men in both cars left Ahern lying senseless in the highway. A broken shaft had pierced the lower leg.

The only clew that Chief Brown had to work on was a State of Maine number plate, No. 10768. Inquiries showed that William H. Kendall of Lewiston, Me., held this number on the registry. Chief Brown got Kendall on the telephone. Kendall said his car had been out of the garage for a week, but he was attempting to find both number plates and the car.

Kendall said the only one he could think of who would be apt to know about his number plates was John Blake of Wollfleet, who left Lewiston last Monday. The police say they found Blake's automobile dismantled in his barn and the other Kendall number plate. They prepared a warrant for Blake, who didn't return Sunday. They think both automobiles were together.

WANT TO 'FUGITIVE AUTOIST'

"LET US HAVE PEACE," SAYS HEARST

The following sentiment William Randolph Hearst was read at the great international peace meeting on Boston Common: "Let Us Have Peace," and let this great American nation exercise its power and influence in behalf of humanity and human progress.

Let us raise our voice loudly, and exercise our influence so strongly, that Europe will be compelled to stop for a moment and to listen to the voice of reason, to the appeal of humanity, to consider for a moment not merely our interests but their own interests, the interests of all civilization, the best interests of the whole human race.

GRAFTERS CANNOT BE NAMED

Maloney's war between Mayor Charles McLaughlin and Rev. Charles H. Moser, pastor of the First Baptist Church in this city, is over.

Recently the Malden News quoted Rev. Moser as saying from his pulpit that the Mayor was to blame for conditions in Malden. The Mayor said this reflected on his integrity and honesty and asked the Council to act.

Rev. Moser said today he had never reflected on the Mayor in any statement he had made from his pulpit.

"Did you mention the Mayor's name?" he was asked.

"No, I won't say I didn't," he replied. "But I did not say a thing that cast any suspicion at him at all."

"But I won't discuss any further. You know the Council committee is to call on me soon, and I shall not refuse."

"Then the trouble between you and the Mayor is going to blow over?"

"There has been no trouble. Why the Mayor talked about it for an hour with me. I told him exactly what I had said and I think he is satisfied. That ends the matter, doesn't it?"

"Did you in your sermon accuse anybody of accepting graft?"

The local paper had a badly garbled report. What I did say was this:

"The investigators (looking into illegal liquor selling in Malden) are convinced that the strange conspiracy of indifference and silence on the part of men who should know the difference between right and wrong, the ground—that someone, somewhere, had had his hand in it."

"Do you know who this someone is?"

"No, I do not."

"Do you believe there is any graft in Malden?"

"I know of any."

"Have you any facts which you plan to lay before the Council committee?"

"That will come out when the committee comes here and I will be glad to wait on them. If it had any facts bearing on any graft I would gladly give them to you."

CZAR CLAIMS CAPTURE OF 280,000 AUSTRIANS

A tremendous Russian expeditionary force, estimated as high as 300,000, of the Czar's finest fighting troops has been landed at Ostend, Belgium, and is now hastening against the retreating German right.

Germany has sent upwards of 160,000 fresh troops to reinforce its exhausted armies in France, particularly the crumpled right wing, which is now menaced by the onrushing French and British on the south and west and by the Belgians and the new Russian force on the north.

REPORT RUSSIAN RETREAT

The Russians make official declaration that they have crushed the Austrian army in Galicia and Russian Poland and taken 200,000 prisoners. Rome hears that the Austrian captives number 280,000. Vienna maintains significant silence on conditions at the front. But Vienna dispatches relate unofficially that the call for reservists of the classes of 1893 and 1894, which is Austria's desperate effort to raise 175,000 more troops, is bringing out boys of 20 and 21 years.

Conflicting claims are made about operations in East Prussia, where Germany is trying to stem the Russian invasion. The German War Office makes official announcement that the Russian army that set out to invest Koenigsberg on the Baltic is in retreat but the Russian Minister of War, Sukhomlinoff, in official statement, calls it merely a strategic move to prevent the German and Austrian forces from combining.

RUSSIANS JOIN ALLIES.

The news of the arrival at Ostend of Russian expeditionary forces via Archangel, Russia, and England, substantiates the rumors which crept out in the past few days of a movement of this sort. The AMERICAN'S correspondent at Antwerp gives the first details today in the following dispatch:

ANTWERP (via Paris), Sept. 14.—Russian troops have been landed at Ostend to reinforce the allied French and British forces in France. They are marching southeast from Ostend to attack the German right wing. Their number is estimated from 170,000 to 300,000. They came from England, having been brought from Archangel, Russia, in liners, conveyed by warships. As many of forty-two vessels were engaged in this transportation. Englishmen say this is

BERLIN RUSHES NEW ARMY OF 160,000 INTO EAST TO CHECK GERMAN DISASTERS

ALLIES HAMMER AT RETREATING GERMANS

Kitchener's greatest war feat. Some Englishmen say that the Russian reinforcements will run as high as 500,000.

The Antwerp correspondent added that he had been informed by one Englishman that at least 100,000 horses had also been landed at Ostend, with saddles all of Russian make.

The latest statement by the French War Office attributes wholesale defeat and disorder to the German army of invasion in the following dispatch:

PARIS, Sept. 14.—General Gallieni, military governor, on authority from Bordeaux, said officially at 3 o'clock:

The German armies of invasion have been dislodged from all their fortified positions and are retreating with rapidity in disorder everywhere.

In an article written exclusively for the International News Service, Georges Clemenceau, former Premier of France, said at Bordeaux today that: "The plan of the German general staff is completely defeated."

The French embassy at Washington received this official dispatch today from Bordeaux:

BORDEAUX, Sept. 14.—General Joffre tells the government that our victory is becoming more and more complete and brilliant. The enemy is in full retreat and is abandoning prisoners, wounded, guns and ammunition.

The news of heavy reinforcements for the retreating Germans in eastern France comes from Berlin in the following dispatch:

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—It is officially announced that the Russians are retreating from the vicinity of Koenigsberg and that a new German army has been sent to France.

It is understood that this army is under command of General von Boehn and that it contains either three or four army corps (120,000 or 160 men). Part of General von Boehn's forces have already reached Belgium and are in the vicinity of Reims.

(This indicates that the new German army will be used to strengthen the German right wing in France and to prevent the lines of communication from being cut).

The news of the retreat of the Russian army about Koenigsberg confirms the previous announcement that the Germans had taken the offensive all along the line in East Prussia. Koenigsberg is safe from attack for some time to come, General von Hindenburg reporting that the Russians have retreated in haste, abandoning guns and supplies.

There is some anxiety here over the lack of official announcements as to the progress of the campaign against the Franco-British armies, the last statement from the staff merely stating that:

Germans had fallen back to strong positions where they could withstand an attack.

First dispatches today from Petrograd were filled with official accounts of the big victories in Galicia and Russian Poland. Little was said of the situation at the Prussian or northern end of the Russian activities. But just before noon this dispatch came of a Russian retreat in Prussia:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 14.—An official announcement today admitted that the Russians have been forced to retreat in their operations against Koenigsberg, as follows:

Generalissimo Grand Duke Nicholas communicates the following:

Our rapid movement in East Prussia has been retarded owing to the necessity of giving our main attention to the fighting in Galicia. Consequently the army of General Rennenkampf has suspended its march on Gerdauen (thirty-five miles southeast of Koenigsberg) and Libau (twenty-six miles north of Koenigsberg). On September 7 the German troops began a general offensive against this army and a spreading movement in the direction of their southern frontier. It was difficult to estimate the number of German troops engaged owing to the broken nature of the country, but a deep overflying movement against the left wing of General Rennenkampf was revealed. On September 10 we were forced to retreat on the following day in order to hinder the enemy's offensive operations, which soon showed the Germans to have a greatly superior force. Fighting continues on this front.

Rome credits the Russian army in Galicia with greater captures than the Russian War Office claims.

ROME, Sept. 14.—A Petrograd dispatch states that Russians have captured 280,000 Austrian prisoners.

The Russian official account of triumphs in Galicia and Russian Poland came in the following dispatch:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 14.—Minister of War Sukhomlinoff said today at the War Office:

The Austrian army is practically crushed. Its centre is offering desperate resistance, but with the fresh troops that have reached General Ruzsky he will be able to overwhelm it and clear the way for an advance into Silesia, which is the direct route to Berlin. By the retirement of the Russian troops in southeastern Prussia, we have drawn a large German army into a position where it will be unable to render help to Breslau or Posen.

The War Minister then offered the reports received from the front of the capture of 200,000 Austrian prisoners in the eighteen-day battle in Galicia and Russian Poland.

The aim of the Russian staff is to smash the Austrian army, with a main eye toward Berlin, but it is possible that, after an investment of Cracow, General Brussiloff will be sent against Vienna.

The gallant Belgians, under the leadership of King Albert, who have been such an unexpected obstacle to the Germans ever since the war began, are now able to hinder reinforcements intended for the German right wing. The AMERICAN'S correspondent at Antwerp wires:

ANTWERP, Sept. 14.—Surprised by a sudden offensive movement on the part of the German forces, the Belgian army commanded by King Albert in person has been forced to retreat to Antwerp. The Germans led the Belgians into a trap, aiming to get between King Albert's army and Antwerp, but by hard fighting the Belgians escaped.

AS AT THE SPOILS FOR THE GERMAN RETREAT

By FRANCIS P. MERRICK, American Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Vast spoils of war have fallen into the hands of the allies during the retreat of the Germans and every day sees this colossal increase.

During the past week the French and English have taken enough guns and ammunition to equip an army. Mighty numbers of German prisoners are being taken.

Thousands of square miles of French territory have been devastated. A vast field headquarters of the allied armies on Sunday morning.

The German advance upon Paris was an extreme movement with a great front, more than 100 miles in length. The continuous pressure of the French and English, the Germans could not present equal strength at all points.

The extreme western wing of the army of the Kaiser made further progress than it had been thought possible.

TAKE GERMAN PRISONERS. On Friday, September 4, skirmishing began in the neighborhood of the Grand Morin, a small river flowing into the Marne.

A number of German prisoners were taken. The next day the German attack was renewed. The allies had been heavily reinforced by the army of Paris and, seeing an opportunity to attack the retreating Germans, they moved forward. The junction of the Marne and the Aisne, moved forward, meeting the Kaiser's legions in battle. Fighting continued all day.

The fighting grew fiercer and on Sunday the conflict in the region of La Perthe-lauch was terrible. The German artillery at La Perthe-lauch was shattered and a great number of hills along the banks of the Grand Morin. When darkness fell, the French did not slacken, but continued through all of Sunday night.

The French had been addressed by General Joffre, who explained to them the ground or its trying, and the retreating Germans at La Perthe-lauch realized that they had been defeated. They were forced to retreat, leaving the invaders at Meaux to continue their advance.

Early Monday the Germans began to retreat. The Grand Morin, on its north bank, soon formed a series of attacks.

ALLIES IN GREAT CHARGE. The scene of the severest fighting then moved to the plateau north of Meaux. While the Germans were moving their artillery to a fresh position to prevent its capture by storm, the French and British cavalry moved forward.

While the Germans were giving ground, the British and French cavalry moved forward. The invaders at Meaux were being pressed back. Along the banks of the Ourcq, northeast of Meaux, the battle reached a terrible pitch on Monday.

All the bridges over the Marne had been blown up and the Germans were caught in a trap.

Yesterday the army of General von Kluck, composing the right flank of the German grand army, had been thrown back from the Marne, the Ourcq and the Grand Morin and was still retreating rapidly toward the northeast in the direction of Laon.

The situation of the German forces, which had occupied the line from Meaux to Soissons, was serious. Reinforcements were sent westward and a tremendous effort was made to break up the French attack in that quarter, but the second attempt of the German north of the Ourcq was unsuccessful as the first had been. On Tuesday night the German army had fallen back about fifty miles. From Vitry-le-Francois to La Perthe-lauch on the retreat was general. The only place where the German the seemed able to withstand the fierce shock of the allied advance was in the center, south of Thionville, east of Argonne.

Considering that section of operations immediately west of Paris I shall not discuss by the following comparison.

With Paris as a base the French armies stretched outward, one northward toward the Ourcq, the other southeastward toward the lower reaches of the Grand Morin. When the great line came they closed like the jaws of a gigantic pair of scissors.

The German right wing was caught in the vise-like grip. There was nothing for the Germans to do but sit and wait or fall back. They tried to fight but were overpowered, and from retirement their movement developed into retreat, then rout.

BUCHAREST, via Rome, Sept. 14.—"Panic prevails in Vienna," says a letter received from Vienna today by an attaché of the Romanian Foreign Office. It continues:

"Russians have reached the people that the Austria-Hungarian troops have been defeated by the Russians and Serbians and that the foe is marching on the capital from two directions."

By FRANCIS LAYELLE MURRAY. PETROGRAD, Sept. 14.—(from the front received by the War Office today state that 200,000 Austrian prisoners have been taken by the Russians in the battle that has raged for sixteen days along a 125-mile line from Hales, Galicia, to Opole, Russian Poland.)

Desperate fighting still continues in the center of this line along the Ourcq and the Marne, where the Austrians are at bay and are striving to save the remnants of their army from the disaster predicted by the rest of their left and right wings. That this will be impossible was the opinion expressed today by Minister of War Sukhomlinoff. He said:

"AUSTRIANS CRUSHED." "The Austrian army is practically crushed. Its centre is offering desperate resistance, but with the fresh troops that have reached General Ruzsky he will be able to overwhelm it and clear the way for an advance into Silesia, which is the direct route to Berlin."

By the retirement of the Russian troops in southeastern Prussia, we have drawn a large German army into a position where it will be unable to render help to Breslau or Posen.

Though the chief aim of the Russian general staff has been the smashing of the Austrian army and the opening of the direct route to Berlin, it is possible that after an investment of Cracow General Brussiloff will be sent against Vienna.

The correspondence of the Novoe Vremya, telegraphing from the front today, says:

"Austrian may have been defeated as a factor in the war. Out of an army of a million men and 200 guns that set out for the invasion of Russia found all that remains are remnants, beaten, broken and dispirited, struggling to cover their flight to shelter in their fortresses. The full extent of Russia's victory is not yet known. The pursuit is being pressed and may continue for several days, but the final outcome is no longer in doubt. The Austrians are demoralized."

COBB FEELS 'BRAVES' "BIG" IN FILTER

Writes Exclusively for the Boston American.

By TY COBB.

In the National League race, which is the all-absorbing conversation with the baseball public now, I am rather afraid that Stallings' three best pitchers, Rudolph, Tyler and James, will suffer before the wire is reached unless something is done to relieve the pressure on them.

I think that it would be a good plan for George to ease in a second string pitcher in every game wherein he gets a respectable lead in the early innings.

I noticed not long ago that he kept his star in all the way through a battle that was won by Boston in the first few rounds beyond all question of doubt.

There are several good youngsters on the Braves' staff, men who could give excellent service in games that they might enter either with a big lead or after Boston had been hopelessly beaten.

THEY HAVE THE FIGHTING SPIRIT.

Probably Stallings would take me to task for saying that there is any such thing as having the Braves hopelessly beaten. He probably thinks that his club is never licked until the last man is out, no matter what the score may be. And the players have the same fighting spirit as their manager, which is one of the reasons why they are winning so regularly.

One of the weekly baseball papers printed a story from St. Louis that Detroit fans are inclined to give credit for the Braves' fine showing, because Stallings is not popular in the City of the Straits.

The whole article struck me as absurd and unjust to Stallings. George has been managing ball clubs for twenty-two years now and never had a bad showing. He never has had a club that looked as good as the Braves' club. He never has had a club that has been so successful and almost invariably has landed in the first division.

EVERY A GREAT FIELD CAPTAIN. This is the first year that Johnny Ivers has been with him, so it doesn't seem likely that the Trojan is entirely responsible for the climb of the Braves.

Johnny is a great ball player and probably there are few better field leaders. But he is not a great manager. "Cry," with a worse effort than Ivers had, is making a better case. Whatever credit is due Ivers, the years—and there is really a lot due—has given him not as a manager, but as a player and captain.

Stallings is the real manager of the club and does not make any mistake about it. George feels the sort of fellow who is around him is the brains of the club or the power that sort. He would be a minute in the world to try to grab the laurels belonging to another man.

SOMETHINGHAD TO DO. American League fans seem to be showing a little interest in the race for batting honors, which is about the only one we have left in our circuit.

My friends keep telling me to get a move on and overhaul the men who are in front of me. But I can't, as easy as it sounds. I have had my share of barrels as the leader of the bunch, and shall not lose any more of them.

It is a little hard to keep my record clean, but I have not been to some keener fellows in the race who are just as anxious as I am to get in front of me. But I can't, as easy as it sounds. I have had my share of barrels as the leader of the bunch, and shall not lose any more of them.

I returned and my hand is still stinging a little trouble. This is a mistake to keep him in condition.

BRAVES OUT TO EVEN MATTERS WITH DODGERS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

After a day of rest, in which the Braves have had a chance to think over the defeat of Saturday, they are ready to tackle the Brooklyn team in the second game of the series this afternoon.

While we are all thankful for the aid of the visitors last week in defeating the Giants in two games, we do not like to have them come here and beat the Braves. Nor do the Boston players relish the idea, so they are going in today to get back that lost game.

Trick Hudson will probably pitch against the Dodgers, and it is possible that we may see Nap Rucker in the box for Brooklyn. Rudolph will have had a good rest since he last appeared on the ash, and his long baseball hand is counted upon to fool the visitors.

The Braves are still two full games ahead of the Giants, and it is sincerely hoped that they can lengthen the distance that separates the two leading teams in the week's play.

On Wednesday the Boston Cardinals, who up to two weeks ago were a decided factor in the pennant race, will be here for a series.

There is no doubt but that Eugene and his men will fight hard, and as to take advantage of any slip on the part of the Braves, they are all the more determined. The Cards are not strictly out of it, and they can still cause trouble.

Tigers May Lose Cambridge Boy

PHILADELPHIA, N. J., Sept. 14.—W. E. Swart, Cambridge boy, who played in the Princeton football team, has been so badly hurt as to make his playing this season doubtful. Swart has been working all summer with the construction company in charge of the new stadium. He was to finish his duties there this week before reporting for practice. It was while superintending the erection of one of the big concrete masonry that he received his injuries.

Champion Rutt Gone; It May Be To War

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 14.—Water Rutt, the German-born boxer, who won the world's championship at the sport in Berlin last August, and who has been in this country since May, has disappeared and now is believed to be on his way to Germany to fight for the fatherland. Rutt probably obtained passage on one of the Italian liners that has left New York since last Wednesday evening, when he last competed at the Newark Velodrome.

Elmira Wins Pennant in N. Y. State League

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The nineteenth season of the New York State League has been closed. Elmira, which defeated Wickesboro last night, has won the pennant. The team has been at the top nearly all season, and has won all but one of its games. Albany, Troy, Syracuse and Scranton finished as runners-up.

DOUBLE LEADER FOR CARRIGANS WITH SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The Red Sox and Senators clash in a double-header today and the opening game looks like a pitching duel between the great Walter Johnson and Ernie Shore, who will make his first appearance here.

Detroit's victory over Chicago yesterday jammed the Senators into fourth place, and the Old Fox determined to pull out of this position at the expense of the Carrigan gang, so Johnson and Jack Bentley will be on the firing line.

The Boston players improved their time yesterday, visiting the various points of interest about the national capital. Catcher Thomas wanted to see the Washington Monument, made famous as the spot where "Vladimir" Street, back in 1903, caught a baseball flying from the top of the granite column.

The lot was taken up, and when the players learned that it was necessary to obtain a permit from the city to enter the grounds, they were abandoned.

The Washington club has recalled several players sold under the optional agreement, and has sent them to the Atlanta club of the Southern League, has reported.

JOHNNY DUNDIE TO BOX WILLIE BEECHER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 14.—Willie Beecher and Johnny Dundie, both of New York, have been matched by Tom McCarey to box "twice" inside at the Varsity arena on September 23. The weight will be 115 pounds.

"I feel safe only with Dioxogen," said a doctor who knows what war has done to the manufacture of peroxide.

No wonder—Dioxogen is the only pure Peroxide of Hydrogen—always the same—retaining its strength indefinitely without the aid of Acetanilid as a preservative. 25% stronger than required by the U. S. P. Standard.

The cost of raw materials has doubled or trebled the cost of ordinary peroxides and the temptation to adulterate the "acetanilid-preserved" kind is greater than ever before.

BIG BOOM IN HOME TRADE IS NOW EXPECTED

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

When the week opened there was more confidence that the situation is being cleared up than at any time since the outbreak of the war. It is now expected that the country at least is slowly recovering from the paralytic effects of a war without parallel. Hope that the financial situation will not last long is persistent. Financial leaders are striving to find a way in which stock, cotton and other exchange can resume normal conditions without creating danger to any bank or interest. Before time, there should be enough of a domestic demand for all kinds of manufactures to stimulate home industries. Selection of the foreign exchange problem is being gradually, but not too rapidly, cleared up. There is reason to believe that this country is going to gain greatly in financial prestige and have much stronger international credit than ever before.

HIGHER FREIGHT RATES

According to a statement published in New York the Interstate Commerce Commission is willing to authorize freight rates which would increase domestic railroads revenues $2,000,000 a year, in the carriage of them. That sum was about what railroad officials estimated would be needed to meet the increased cost of fuel and other expenses. The commission allowed them a 10 per cent increase in freight rates. A list of commodities on which the commission is willing to allow increases is given. Most of them are raw products, but the other side of the coin is that the commission feels that roads have been allowed to charge too much. It is expected that the roads will not resist the decision, which would mean a 10 per cent increase in freight rates. The cost of the increase is estimated at $2,000,000.

BOSTON AMERICAN

What Will Come Out of This War?

No Man Knows. But We Know What OUGHT to Result from the War.

(Copyright, 1914, by the War Company)

Many millions of men are speculating on the question, "After the war, what?"

What will the Kaiser get if he wins? What will he get if he loses?

What will Austria get or lose?

What will become of England if she is wiped out as a sea power?

What will happen to France?

No man can answer these questions. No man SHOULD answer them in the United States. For to answer, one way or the other, is to offend against neutrality, stir up national hatred—and that would be a crime in a nation that should work and think only of peace.

While we do not know what will happen, and have no right to predict, we know what OUGHT to happen.

There should come out of this carnival of murder and brutality, THE UNITED STATES OF EUROPE.

There need be no loss of dignity or honor, no dreadful load upon hard-working peasants, no shameful humiliation for any part of any conquered race.

The problem of civilization would be solved by the creation of the United States of Europe, WITH ONE ARMY TO POLICE THE WORLD, AND ONE FLEET TO POLICE THE OCEAN, THE NATIONS OF THE AMERICAN CONTINENT AND ALL OTHERS SHARING IN THE EXPENSE.

Men see today what unbridled competition does in national warfare, national armies and navies—and they ought to have enough of that competition.

Here in the United States we have a nation stretching from one ocean to the other, AND NOT A POSSIBILITY OF FIGHT OR DISCORD BETWEEN THOSE NATIONS—OUR STATES—BECAUSE THE STATES ARE UNITED.

These States lose nothing and gain all through the union. Each has its government, each can try its experiment, each has its wealth, its ambition, its local pride.

They are all united simply, GUARANTEEING EACH OTHER AGAINST MURDER, LAWLESSNESS, INFRINGEMENT OF EACH OTHER'S RIGHTS.

What is to prevent the creation of the United States of Europe?

Why should not the peoples live together, governing themselves, electing and submitting to the decision of a central court of justice?

Since individuals no longer keep their private armed murderers, why should nations do so?

Since individuals no longer settle their quarrels with the knife, or the club, why should nations settle their quarrels with murder?

If the noblest man living, unjustly treated by the vilest, is willing to submit his case to the court, why should not the greatest nation submit its case to an equally great court, no matter what or who attacks?

Horrible is this war, destructive beyond description, murderous and degrading.

But it would be worth every thousand million it will cost, worth every drop of blood and every tear that will be shed, if, when the smoke blows away, and the blood is dried, and the wounds are healed, there could be on the continent of Europe a republic of nations, self governing, as there is on this continent a self governing republic of nations called the United States of America.

Magnificent would be the treaties of peace, of good will, between great groups of United States.

Soon would come the United States of the World.

For the intelligence of humanity no longer wants war. It is the barbarian at the bottom, and the barbarian at the top on the throne who longs for and causes wholesale murder.

Intelligence, which will rule now as in the past, wants no more war.

And intelligence has reached a point in the world where it might well rule always through United States in America, in Europe, in Asia, in Africa, and in Australia.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Boston has the biggest steamship pier in the world? The Vaterland, the Imperator and three good sized tramp ships could tie up at the Commonwealth pier and discharge passengers and cargo at one time. This pier, with its 20 acres of floor space in three sheds, its six railway tracks with capacity for 150 freight cars, and its great areas for the accommodation of passenger traffic, is as large as the four famous Chelsea piers in New York, which cost $23,000,000.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE TRUE CAUSE.

Mr. W. R. Bennett,
Dear Sir—A thousand thanks for your glorious editorial, "The Cost of Kings," which shows the true cause and the way to prevent this damnable "war."
Kings, emperors, czars and war should forever end, and the people demand citizenship and freedom for their cities and homes.
Yours for the cause,
J. C. B.

WHY NOT TAX EXPORTS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN,
Dear Sir—Read some of the news about putting a war tax on railway tickets, postcards, etc., to make up the deficit in the United States Treasury caused by the falling off of external revenue.

But why make the citizens of the United States suffer for the war? Why place an export duty on all food products being exported from this country, and make the starving nations, through the food they will have to buy from this country, make up for the deficit?
I think that the Senators and Congressmen will do something in this suggestion, for it will lift a heavy burden from the shoulders of the people of this country. A READER.

After the Big Business

Speaking of War Taxes

Never Tell Your Wife of Her Little Faults

Just Make Her Believe She's the Realization of Your Fondest Ideal of Woman-kind, and Life Will Be Sweet

By DOROTHY DIX

"SALLY is a fine woman, but she has a number of little faults, and you should tell her of them," said the man's mother in speaking to him of his young wife.

"Not on your life," responded the wife's husband, "far be it from me to tell any woman that I have observed certain flaws and weaknesses, and blemishes in her character or person. And still further be it from me to make these invidious remarks to my own wife. Whoever tells Sally of her imperfections, it won't be me. I have observed too many husbands and wives who thought it was their sacred duty to tell each other of their faults, and they other would up in the divorce court or spent their time wishing they had the courage to bibe out to Reno."

"And I don't blame them. None of us are particularly keen on the society of people who criticize us and tell us home truths. Of course we know that, being human, we must have little blemishes, but we live in the fond belief that we keep them covered up so that the general public isn't aware of them. That they exist, and it's always a shock when we find out that some eagle eye has ferreted out the little no-man spot in us."

Often Gives Love a Death Wound It Never Summons

"Think, then, what a blow it is when we find out that we haven't fooled even our nearest and dearest, and the one whose affection we had supposed made him or her blind to our faults."

"I tell you many a time it gives love a death wound from which it never recovers."

"There's a perfectly good reason why husbands and wives should never tell each other of their faults. It is this: It is absolutely necessary for a husband to believe that he is a paragon in his wife's eyes. It is absolutely necessary for a wife to believe that she is the realization of her husband's fondest ideal of womanhood. All the glamour and happiness of matrimony is bound up in this faith."

"The man must believe that his wife looks up to him; that she thinks he is more or less of an oracle; that his judgment and his knowledge of the world are to be trusted; and that when she married him she got a matrimonial prize."

"But what happens if the beginning telling him of his faults? The criticism punctures his balloon of self-esteem and the whole thing collapses. When your wife corrects your grammar or your table manners and tells you where to sit down on the street cars, and informs the reason you don't get rich is because you haven't got enough initiative and ambition, and that you show low taste in the selection of your friends, you know that you are no longer a godlike creature to her. You are a miserable human shrimp, and under that knowledge your human soul shrivels up and dies within you."

"And it's just the same way with a woman. No matter what mistakes or hard times marriages may bring to a woman she is beautiful to her husband, and that he considers her an earthly angel that condescended from her high estate to marry him."

"But let him commence telling her of her little faults and weaknesses, and the jig is up. She knows the lady of romance has been smashed into smithereens when he commences to talk about her eating fat and to wonder why she doesn't dress like some other woman. She knows that her pedestal has been knocked out from under her when he calls her attention to the burnt roast and watery vegetables, and tells her that she is a bum housekeeper, and about the worst financier that ever came to marry him, and that her nerves are nothing but temper, and that if she was a reasonable human being she'd try to act like one and control herself."

"She can't adopt the angel pose any more after the first real honest-to-godness batch of his opinions of her that her husband lets out. She knows that she can never slide again before the one man whose admiration she craves above all the world, and the knowledge is the bitterness of death to her."

Let Somebody Else Tell Husband or Wife Their Faults

"Women don't know it, but the strongest hold that any wife has on her husband is his ardent belief that he has won her into thinking that he is the greatest man on earth, and she breaks this strange hold when she begins telling him of his faults. Men never realize it, but the difference between marriage being heaven or hell to a woman is her faith that she's still a dream to her husband after she's fat and forty, and when he wakes her up from this dream by reminding her of her weaknesses, she pays him back by getting jealous."

"That's why the critic on the house generally busts up the honeymoon and the whole thing collapses. When your wife corrects your grammar or your table manners and tells you where

THE POET'S THEME

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(Copyright, 1914, by the War Company)

Why should the poet of these pregnant times

Be asked to sing of war's unholy crimes?

To laud and eulogize the trade which thrives

On horrid holocausts of human lives?

Man was a fighting beast when earth was young

And war the only theme when Homer sung.

'Twixt might and might the equal contest lay;

Not so the battles of our modern day.

Too often now the conquering hero struts

A Gulliver among the Lilliputs.

Success no longer rests on skill or fate,

But on the movements of a syndicate.

Of old, men fought and deemed it right and just,

Today the warrior fights because he must;

And in his secret soul feels shame because

He desecrates the higher manhood's laws.

Oh, there are worthier themes for poet's pen

In this great hour than bloody deeds of men.

The rights of many—not the worth of one—

The coming issues, not the battle done—

The awful pollution and awful need—

The rise of brotherhood—the fall of greed.

The soul of man replete with God's own force,

The call "to heights," and not the cry "to horse."

Are there not better themes in this great age

For pen of poet, or for voice of sage?

Than those old tales of killing? Song is dumb

Only that greater song in time may come.

When comes the bard, he whom the world waits for,

He will not sing of War.
